This course will prepare primary care physicians, nurse practitioners, physician assistants and registered dietician and nurses to manage adult and adolescent patients affected by obesity. State of the art science coupled with practical methods of achieving improved health for patients and incorporating case-based teaching will allow the participant to integrate these principles into their practice and help prepare them to take the certification in obesity medicine (American Board of Obesity Medicine). A certificate in obesity management from the Center for Obesity and Bariatric Surgery will be available for those practitioners attending the entire 8-hour CME course.
